RE: Wisconsin DNR 2020 State Natural Area Program Strategy

The Wisconsin Climbers Association and Access Fund appreciate the opportunity to comment on the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Bureau of Natural Heritage Conservation's 2020 State Natural Area Program Strategy. We request rock climbing be recognized as an appropriate recreational activity in State Natural Areas (SNA), compatible with conservation in most cases, similar to hiking, hunting, and fishing. We support the concept that clear guidelines should be established to assist in deciding what areas are suitable (or not) for these activities. Attached to this letter are the signatures of 860 members of the climbing community who support these recommendations as well.

Wisconsin Climbers Association

The Wisconsin Climbers Association (WCA) is the voice for the Wisconsin climbing community. Our goal is to foster community connections, address climbing access issues, and promote land stewardship. The WCA provides organized stewardship days to conserve Wisconsin public lands, raising funds and rallying scores of volunteers annually to clean up trash and graffiti, as well as work on trail and erosion control projects. For more information on WCA, visit www.wiclimbers.org.

Access Fund

Access Fund is a national advocacy organization whose mission keeps climbing areas open and conserves the climbing environment. A 501(c)(3) non-profit and accredited land trust representing millions of climbers nationwide in all forms of climbing—rock climbing, ice climbing, mountaineering, and bouldering—the Access Fund is the largest US climbing advocacy organization with over 20,000 members and over 123 local affiliates. The Access Fund provides climbing management expertise, stewardship, project specific funding, and educational outreach. For more information about the Access Fund, visit www.accessfund.org.

COMMENTS

The DNR has developed a DRAFT State Natural Area Strategy for 2020-2030. The five goals used to guide the future of the SNA program include 'Provide opportunities for environmental and education and compatible use.'<sup>1</sup> Currently, all but the most sensitive SNAs are open to the public for a wide range of recreational opportunities including hiking, skiing, hunting and trapping. However, the DNR specifically does not permit rock climbing in the majority of SNAs in the state. We request that rock climbing be added to the list of recreational uses compatible with SNAs. We support the DNR's goals to protect biodiversity and protect sites containing significant geological and archeological features. We believe we can work with DNR to protect existing resources and allow rock climbing in SNAs.

According to Wisconsin Administrative Code, NR1.33 Policy on rock climbing:

'Rock climbing is a traditional recreational activity that may occur on non-designated use areas on department lands, and is consistent with the department's mission to provide recreational opportunities to the public. Rock climbing should be considered in master planning for department properties which contain areas where rock climbing may occur.'<sup>2</sup>

However, since this policy was established, consideration of rock climbing has been completely ignored in all DNR planning.

At the same time NR1.33 was written, an arbitrary decision was made to declare rock climbing incompatible with conservation goals and ban the activity from most State Natural Areas. This decision was made over the objections of the Rock Climbing Technical Advisory Committee then convened by the DNR to consider such policies, and with no documented basis. No attempt was made to explain what distinguished the two State Natural Areas excluded from the ban from the rest.

We recognize that not all rocks are created equal and that in some SNAs with rock faces that appear to be climbable it is not ecologically sound to do so, either because the rock is too fragile or because of rare biological resources. Some rocks also host important archaeological resources. However, many other SNAs have rock faces that are well suited to climbing and comparable in quality to the existing exceptions within Devils Lake State Park and Interstate State Park.

There is extensive history in many areas of the state where rock climbing was previously allowed prior to the ban on climbing in State Natural Areas. Additionally, many of these areas were used for climbing for decades before they became State Natural Areas, which strongly suggests that climbing is compatible with conservation goals. Finally, several properties have been declared State Natural Areas since the general ban was enacted, and rock climbing has been summarily excluded with no apparent consideration and no evidence that climbing is incompatible with the new goals for these areas.

From a climber's point of view, every rock is unique. It would make sense to climbers to make decisions property by property and rock by rock. There are numerous successful examples of areas where specific routes are closed for conservation (typically to protect biological or archaeological resources), or cliffs are closed for specific seasons for conservation (typically for raptor nesting). We recognize that this can become cumbersome for land managers: hence the need for clear guidelines, and for responsible user groups to aid land managers in their implementation. The same approach we support for rock climbing would also be useful in managing hiking, fishing, and hunting access as well.

Recommendations

WCA and Access Fund request the DNR once again recognize rock climbing as an appropriate recreational activity in State Natural Areas and that clear guidelines are established to assist in deciding what areas are suitable (or not) for this activity. We strongly support management plans that allow responsible recreation, such as rock climbing, hiking, and fishing, to co-exist sustainably with natural and cultural resources. By designing a management plan that recognizes the activity of rock climbing as outlined in NR 1.33<sup>3</sup>, proper planning can be implemented to allow sustainable access to rock climbing while preserving the natural environment.

The following areas have a long history of climbing (prior to rock climbing being designated as a prohibited activity) that supports rock quality that can sustain climbing safely without damage to the rock faces themselves. Furthermore, these areas currently allow hiking and approaches to these faces we believe would add no additional impacts than existing hiking in the areas today:

- Abelman's Gorge State Natural Area
- Gibraltar Rock State Natural Area
- Quincy Bluff and Wetlands State Natural Area
- Castle Mound Pine Forest State Natural Area
- Mill Bluff State Natural Area
- Rib Mountain Talus Forest State Natural Area
- High Cliff Escarpment State Natural Area
- Maiden Rock Bluff State Natural Area
- South Bluff/Devil's Nose State Natural Area

Along the same vein, the following areas we believe are NOT suitable for rock climbing. We advise using these areas as a starting point for determining what criteria are consistent with SNA's that are ill suited for climbing:

- Parfrey's Glen State Natural Area
- Pewitt's Nest State Natural Area

Criteria for Establishing Climbing

We recommend a set of criteria be established to assist climbers and land managers in determining which sites are suitable to open for climbing. Access Fund and WCA are willing to help craft a climbing management plan or set of criteria to aid in this process. Many other state and federally managed lands across the US allow climbing and often establish a management plan<sup>4</sup> or set of guidelines to educate climbers on three main principles for climbing access:

1. Where can I climb?
2. What can I climb?
3. When can I climb?

The primary criteria to determine the answers to the three questions above should be based on managing impacts to natural resources and/or cultural resources. Climbing is a low impact activity and can be managed to coexist with the natural environment. Typically, a climbing area is only closed or seasonally managed if there is presence of a sensitive or endangered plant or wildlife species. Even in those instances the sensitive resource can be easily avoided while allowing climbing activities nearby<sup>5</sup>.

Examples of climbing management plans from numerous states and ecological areas can be provided to help detail this criteria more specifically and enable the leveraging of best practices from other land managers.

<sup>4</sup> <http://www.climbingmanagement.org/climbing-information-and-management-plans>

Additionally, some areas may be appropriate for only a certain subset of climbing types. The three primary types of climbing are:

- Traditional: A style of climbing where protection is placed by the ascending climber and removed by the seconding partner. Traditional climbs are protected by climbing equipment that is removable and does not impact the rock surface. This style of roped climbing is prominent at Devils Lake State Park today.
- Sport: Climbs that are protected, exclusively with fixed protection, usually bolts. These climbs are usually short (typically one rope length, 50-60 meters). Sport climbs are generally more popular and provide a safer climbing environment. This style of roped climbing is seen today at Willow River State Park.
- Bouldering: Ropeless climbing that concentrates on short, sequential moves on rock usually no more than 15 feet off the ground. Falls are short and typically inconsequential. Use of a bouldering crash pad is common. This type of climbing is popular in parks such as Devils Lake State Park and Governor Dodge State Park.

Climbing management plans developed for each SNA may find that one type of climbing is appropriate whereas others are not.

Climbing Community Support & Resources

For areas that do not have a proven history of climbing but are deemed potentially suitable for climbing, we recognize that additional resources may be needed to help evaluate suitability.

The WCA, Access Fund and the climbing community at large are ready, willing, and able to help the DNR improve access trails and develop management strategies to access rock climbing in Wisconsin SNA's. Local climbing communities throughout Wisconsin have a long history of positive environmental stewardship and collaboration with government agencies at all levels of government, private landowners and other organizations to protect this wonderful, highly-valued resource.

Furthermore, our community has proven that a conservation mindset is an essential part of our identity. The WCA hosts a number of trail and stewardship days annually that bring climbers to official DNR trails as well as to climbing areas to help the park with litter removal, removing invasive species, and removing graffiti from rock faces in even the most hard to reach locations. Significant monetary support has been provided to bring in professional conservation crews to reduce and prevent erosion in high traffic areas for climbers and hikers alike along with maintaining and providing equipment for stewardship work.

Nationally, Access Fund strives to work with local climbers and land managers to address these needs. We also provide training on planning and stewardship best practices to keep those areas healthy. In addition, some aspects of this planning initiative may qualify for the Access Fund Climbing Preservation Grant Program<sup>6</sup> or assistance from our Conservation Team<sup>7</sup> which helps maintain climbing areas throughout the United States. In fact, the Conservation Team has been at Devils Lake State Park in five of the last 10 years to lead major conservation projects that help keep the impacts of all users minimized and rectified, where applicable.

Thank you for your consideration of these comments on the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Bureau of Natural Heritage Conservation’s 2020 State Natural Area Program Strategy. The Access Fund and the WCA have the experience, local contacts, and resources to help planners craft alternatives that encourage climbing while sustaining the health and integrity of Wisconsin DNR State Natural Areas. The Access Fund and WCA look forward to continuing to work with DNR. Please keep us informed as the planning process proceeds. Finally, we truly appreciate the efforts of the staff to seek input from diverse groups and interests. Feel free to contact Doug Hemken via e-mail (dehemken@wisc.edu) or Katie Goodwin via telephone (303-552-2843) or email (katie@accessfund.org) to discuss this matter further.
